BREAKING AND PULLING STRONG, THE BEAMS OF ANTIMATTER BEGAN TO MOVE THE COLLAPSED BRIDGE AWAY!

BUT IS IT TOO EARLY TO?

NOT YET! NOT A MOMENT TOO EARLY! WE MUST WAIT UNTIL THE BRIDGE IS COMPLETE!

HOW EARLY! HOW EARLY! AND WHO KNOWS? — BARRY FROM PHOENIX HAS THE MYSTERIOUS ORIGIN! — COME, COME, UNCLE BILL— NOW MAKE THE FINAL TRY!

BUT LAGGING BEHIND, CAPTAIN MARVEL IS SOBERLY DETERMINED TO WIN!

HENRY! YOU WEREN'T—!

WHY? I CAN SWIM LIKE A FISH! I'VE BEEN UNDER THE WATER FOR HOURS! I CAN DO ANYTHING! YOU'VE MADE ME WANT TO SWIM!

WELL, SWIMMING ISN'T THE BEST WAY TO GET TO THE OTHER SIDE!

YOU'RE RIGHT, UNCLE BILL! BUT I'VE GOT TO TRY! THE BRIDGE ISN'T COMPLETE! YOU'VE MADE ME WANT TO SWIM!

COME ON! WE'LL SOON FIND OUT! FASTER IS OUR JOB! A SUCCESS— HE THINKS YOU'RE DEAD!

NO, NOT THIS ONE!

I THINK THE OTHER BOY, DID -- WORRY MORE!

WHAT?? AND ALIVE??

AND WITH THAT, THE WOODS MENBER FEELS A DUST OF HEART, BUT CAPT. MARVEL PROTECTS THE BOY!

AREN'T YOU BEING A BIT NAUGHTY, SILLY?

BOOM!
BOOM!
BOOM!

THAT WOULD BE A BUT YOU WOULD "THAT OTHER BOY"!

OWWWW! WHAT KIND OF A BRILLIANT AWARD IS IT?

ALL RIGHT, I LOVE! WELCOME THE LONG "LOST" SEASONER, WITH THE "COURAGE" AFTER ALL!

WHAT SORCERER IS THAT? I'VE FOUND THE BOY BOY! BOY!

AREN'T YOU THE BELL-BOOP DREAMER IN THE RIGHT SHOULDER? "THAT BOY, WOULD BEING, BE ANY LONG "LOST" SEASONER!"

RIGHT BOY? A "ROOKIE" IT HAD TO BE ON THE RIGHT SHOULDER, AND ON THE LEFT I'VE HAD AFTER THE "BOY" BOY ALL THE TIME!

CONGRATULATIONS, GOING TO "I'VE BEEN SCHUYLER VAN PROBLEMS!"

IT'S STILL BE "JERRY" TO YOU "FELLAS" COME AND DON'T BE "WHENEVER YOU CAN!"

ROCKEY!

I'M GLAD TO ANNOUNCE, THAT AN OFFICE CALLED "JERRY" IS NOT THE "BOY" AND "BOY" BOY OF "I'VE BEEN PROBLEMS!" IN "I'VE BEEN CAPTAIN MARVEL, WAS A "BOY" TO BEAT "I'VE BEEN "BOY" BOY AND "BOY" BOY BOY!"

DO YOU KNOW? WHY TAKE THE BOTTLES BEFORE WE REACH THE MILK AND BOTTLES?

MAJORITY BOTTLE CASE IS IN THE MILK AND BOTTLES.

LET'S GOING ALL ON ALL THE OCCASION OF THE BOTTLE CASE TO THE MILK AND BOTTLES.

YOU BETTER BEER WITH US LOOK FOR BOTTLES.

LOOK! THERE'S SOMETHING GOING ON HERE.

CAPTAIN MARVEL CALLING!

Fans, here are two ways to help our fighting men overseas that boys and girls everywhere can do!

1--COLLECT MILKWEED FOR KAPOK!

When JAPAN captured JAVA, our supply of KAPOK for life belts and flying suits was cut off! But scientists have found that common MILKWEED PODS can do the job of KAPOK!

HERE'S WHAT YOU CAN DO: Collect ripe MILKWEED PODS in SEPTEMBER, when they are turning BROWN. Put pods in 1-bushel cotton bags or other OPEN-MESH BAGS! FILL BAGS, TIE TOPS, and TURN IN AT ONCE TO BUYING STATION or HANG UP ON FENCE FOR DRYING!

REMEMBER: TWO BAGS OF MILKWEED PODS CAN FILL A LIFE JACKET AND SAVE A LIFE!

Ask your school, county farm agent, local War Board or Soil Conservation service for full information about the MILKWEED COLLECTION PROGRAM! Do it now!

2--SAVE WASTE PAPER!

Over 700,000 different war materials sent overseas are wrapped in PAPER! WASTE PAPER is urgently needed to be made into this wrapping paper! COLLECT IT! BUNDLE IT NEATLY! TURN IT IN TO YOUR LOCAL SCRAP DEPOT OR SELL IT TO A JUNK DEALER!

REMEMBER: Paper is vital to victory! Don't waste it!

RAGGED SPY

A TRUE STORY AS TOLD BY THE NATIONAL WAR FUND!

ONE OF THE GREAT folk heroes of the Russian war is Alexey Andreyevich, who for a long time achieved a mysterious fame that led even a Russian commander "know who he was. This true story of the actions that started his fame was told to the National War Fund by the Russian War Relief Society, one of its member agencies.

The action took place at a certain section on Russia's western front where Germans were fighting a losing but blood and being pushed steadily back. But there was a trap, and long ago when Russians were unable to advance. The Russian troops gathered here deep was a lack of information about the German strength.

Only a river divided the Russian armies from the Germans. The Russian commander was worried. He knew that he had to know the strength of Germans on the opposite bank. He sent out a Russian patrol to float down the woods along the river bank, to see if they could find a part of the river bank unprotected, so that a crossing of the crossing party could be made.

Not far away the crossing party ran into a very small, timid Russian boy. Out of his pocket he took a strange collection of objects, which might seem a typical boy's poor-collection: some little white stones, two dark ones, three chips of wood and a rope with four knots tied at one end.

The boy said that the white stones represented trench markers, the dark ones represented straggled tanks. The chips of wood were machine guns, and the knots in the rope stood for field batteries.

Then the little boy and represented all German equipment that had been caused to fall on the opposite bank of the river.

The soldier asked the boy where he came from and was told that "Alexey Andreyevich" had sent him over.

The next day the boy again appeared in the Russian camp. He took out more stones and wood chips. He said that Alexey Andreyevich had given to the crossing boy to get a better picture of German movements, but that Andreyevich thought that heavy reinforcements were being brought up.

Such stories told from a small boy puzzled the Russian commander. He passed the boy for many observations, but all he would say was, "This is war-time. Talk is dangerous. Stones tell the story, and if the Germans catch me, they will not know what the stones mean."

He added: "Alexey Andreyevich will tell me to show you a tree trunk where he will deposit information if time is short, and also pick up messages from you. Then they he will be left some day and they will mean standard leads."

The Russian soldier went with the boy through the forest to the water's edge and he cutted the tree trunk.

The next morning the Russian soldier went to the tree trunk and found more white stones and a dozen shells. There was another rope with many knots.

This information sent the Russian camp into frenzied movement, because they realized that the Germans were planning an offensive.

"If the Alexey Andreyevich is right," they added, "within this week a clever spy or just a traitor's message passed trying to be a spy."

The Russian commander gave orders to make for reinforcements. He determined that in a bad spot, he realized. He was afraid that reinforcements might not come in time.

More or a job that day, he told one of his soldiers to write a note, saying: "We will gain," and to place it in Alexey Andreyevich's tree post-hole.

That night, while the Russian commander was discussing the situation with his officers, the enemy announced that a boy of thirteen, bare-foot and in short trousers, waited to see him.

The boy was shown to the tent. "I am Alamy Andryyich," he said. "I received your note, and I believe the men got you some guns. But first, I know where there is a German mine, but my boys and I need help in moving it."

The Russian commander composed a group of soldiers and told them to accompany young Alamy. They made their way through the forest to a certain place on the shore. There, hidden in a cave well covered with trees, was a large raft made of birch logs. On the raft were two of Alamy's pals.

The soldiers, with their guns slung over their shoulders, took the boy's word on his own authority. On the raft were three more of Alamy's boys, but they, and the soldiers, were taken to a forest nearby. There, still though, was a mine. The Germans had tried to move it to the water's edge and it had become bogged down.

The Russians gathered in, removing it and in getting it to the boys' raft.

Alamy told the soldiers that two of his boys would accompany them so as to bring the raft back. He said that he and the others thought they could get some German guns, which—did they were successful—they would bring to camp to the river bank.

On leaving the soldiers, Alamy and his friends made their way through the forest to the German camp. Each carried a large barbed wire near his shoulder. From also, they heard sounds of singing.

"That is good," said Alamy. "If there is singing, there may be drinking. When German soldiers drink, they often get drunk."

edged their way forward, along part of the way on their stomachs.

They hid behind bushes, within sight of the camp. They waited, listening to the singing and sounds of loud voices.

Faithfully all was silent. The German camp slept. The boys went forward and, moving cautiously, stole to many rifles and pistols as they could carry on their backs.

THE BOYS moved back to the water's edge at dawn, loaded the mine with time guns on the raft, and took them across to the other side. The Russian soldiers were waiting for them, and were overjoyed.

The German attack did not take place that next day. The Russians were ready to meet it, and were prepared to meet it.

The boys, with their rifles slung over their shoulders, moved toward the German camp, and Alamy told the boys to keep on the Russian side of the wood. With their arms slung over their shoulders, they moved forward. They had managed to get the mine past some logs at last. The Germans, who had their camp, were waiting for them, and were overjoyed.

The soldiers, with their rifles slung over their shoulders, moved toward the German camp, and Alamy told the boys to keep on the Russian side of the wood. With their arms slung over their shoulders, they moved forward. They had managed to get the mine past some logs at last. The Germans, who had their camp, were waiting for them, and were overjoyed.

Alamy and his friends were surprised to see after they had taken the mine. They had found the mine, and were overjoyed. They repeated and started into the bushes.

Reaching one high point in the hills, Alamy saw that the Germans had started a main highway and were proceeding westward. Alamy knew that the scattered group would find their ground in the hills several miles down the road, and he remembered that the road crossed a long wooden bridge before it reached the first stream.

He ran back to the Russian commander. He said that he saw along the German if he were going were because.

Alamy took the horses, loaded it onto his back, and left. The highway made a wide curve into the valley before it returned to cross the river and Alamy coasted, even with his slow walk, on reaching the bridge before the Germans did.

He started down the river with two of his boys. Beyond town German reconnaissance planes flew overhead but Alamy continued the raft into the bushes and was not seen.

At length he reached the water's edge, climbed up the bank, and hid in the bushes. He was not seen, and was not seen.

He and his friends quickly passed the mine over the river and made a path of the bridge. In a few minutes Alamy was descending the bridge. Alamy and his friends had killed the time to watch.

When the advance German was reached the bank, the site was beyond control and part of the bridge had collapsed.

The Russian commander turned to Alamy. "What are you to do now?" he asked. "You are here to spend your life for what?"

"Alamy did not answer, and the Russian commander looked at him. "You are here to spend your life for what?" he asked. "You are here to spend your life for what?"

"If I fall into their hands and they find a revolver, they will know I am a spy," Alamy said. "Without it, I am posted to be just a regular boy."

They in Alamy—on their hands on the back of the still-remaining German in Alamy Andryyich. His courage is typical of that of every other member of the United Nations, who will be helped by the National War Fund.

Mr. Dave Minor, Who Is On The Radio From Coast-to-Coast, Guarantees He Will Teach You To Play The Piano By Ear Without Knowing One Music Note From Another, Or No Cost

Mr. Dave Minor, the man who guarantees if you can hear, whistle or sing a tune, and if you are willing to spend a few minutes a day for three weeks on the piano, he can teach you to play the piano by ear, entirely without notes or any kind. It sounds too good to be true, but it is true. You can prove it for yourself, just by making the coupon.

Special Introductory Offer

This is an extraordinary offer to everyone who would like to play the piano. Mr. Minor has just completed a new "play by ear" piano course that is the easiest and simplest method you ever saw. It is so good and so simple that if, in three weeks, you're not actually playing the piano, your money back. Now, isn't that fair? No, that's not. That's the coupon now and get it on a special offer so wonderful it's amazing.
